Small Bites

A few quick updates from the world of Meals on Wheels:

Thanks to everyone who came out to Meals on Heels, our big summer party to support Meals on Wheels on Aug. 3! Check out photos from the event at facebook.com/mealsonheelsevent.

Cheers to the 6,000+ people who joined us for the inaugural Meals on Wheels Northeast Food Truck Rally Aug. 13 at Able Seedhouse and Brewery. See photos from the event at facebook.com/MetroMealsOnWheels.

It's not too early to be thinking about Thanksgiving, at least when it comes to joining us in the morning for the Walk To End Hunger. Learn more about how you and your family can become Hunger Superheroes for Meals on Wheels at meals-on-wheels.com/hungerwalk.

NOBODY CAN DO THIS ALONE - A STEP BY STEP STORY OF NEIGHBORS HELPING NEIGHBORS

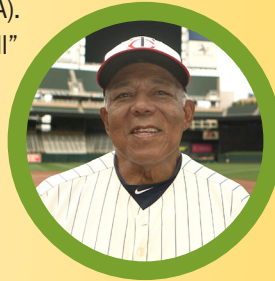

The concept of Meals on Wheels is simple: a daily meal delivered by a friendly volunteer to someone who might otherwise have a difficult time accessing nutritious food. But as anyone who has delivered meals can attest, Meals on Wheels is often about so much more than just food.

We're sharing some of the larger things that we all have been able to accomplish together during the past year inside this Annual Report. But let's take a look at the little, yet extremely important, things people do along every step of the way to make the delivery of Meals on Wheels possible.

It's okay to call

Asking for help is not always easy. Knowing that there are many people in the Twin Cities who could benefit from receiving Meals on Wheels but haven't picked up the phone, we asked a number of notable Twin Cities residents to help us share the message that it's okay to call Meals on Wheels.

We were blown away by the response as former Twins great Tony Oliva, Chef and TV Personality Andrew Zimmern and KARE11 reporter Jana Shortal were among those who volunteered to deliver this message via a public service announcement (PSA). The "It's Okay to Call" PSA aired on TV and radio stations across the metro throughout the last year and you can view it at bit.ly/itsOKtocall.

TONY OLIVA

Jackie Benedict, who lives in Richfield, contacted Meals on Wheels a year ago when carpal tunnel and a shoulder injury made it difficult for her to cook for herself. She says that without the delivery of daily meals and a caregiver that comes twice a week to help with tasks around the house such as cleaning, she might have to move out of the place she's called home since her children were in school. "It just helps a lot," she says.

At the Metro Meals on Wheels office, we've seen a 46 percent increase in the last year from people interested in receiving meals. It's our hope is that nobody in need ever hesitates to get in touch with Meals on Wheels.

A caring voice on the other end of the call

"Thank you Eva. You were so helpful. There have been so many decisions to make and details to attend to in the last few months and so many have been so frustrating. Talking to you and organizing this was the first thing that went without a hitch. I appreciate your help and your patience with a daughter who is drowning in caretaking. Lord bless your everything!"

This was a note left by a caregiver for Eva Kranz, an enrollment specialist at Meals on Wheels. We continue to dedicate more resources to the enrollment operation at Meals on Wheels to help ensure that people asking for help are met with a compassionate and helpful voice. People like Eva make the sometimes difficult process of asking for help easier when a person in need of Meals on Wheels or their caregiver makes the decision to pick up the phone.

EVA KRANZ

It's about more than a meal

When a person signs up to get meals, Meals on Wheels staff do more than just setting up delivery. They take down emergency contact information and help connect the recipient or caregiver with other resources such as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) and transportation programs.

Those who get Meals on Wheels also benefit from other programs focused on maintaining a safe home environment. For example, Merrick Meals on Wheels on St. Paul's East Side partnered with Regions Hospital and the St. Paul Fire Department last winter to conduct fire safety checks and offer fall prevention tips to people who receive meals.

Powered by volunteers

Meals on Wheels is the only service in the Twin Cities that provides both daily hot meal delivery and a check-in by someone who's looking out for the well-being of the recipient - something we like to call the Meals on Wheels Advantage. Last year an incredible 12,737 volunteers delivered a meal to their neighbors.

Chris Kasic, his wife Cathryn, and his sons Nick and Aaron have delivered meals in the Loring Park neighborhood of Minneapolis for 11 years. Chris says it's not just the recipients that benefit from their deliveries, as his sons have learned valuable lessons delivering meals every summer.

"They've picked up on the fact that there are interesting and engaging people everywhere you look," he says, as they've formed friendships with the people they deliver to. The Twin Cities are fortunate to have so many people like the Kasics who appreciate the bond formed with Meals on Wheels recipients and are willing to continue the tradition of neighbors helping neighbors.

Your donations make all of this possible

If you're receiving this report, there's a good chance that you are part of a broad network of donors that supports the operation of Meals on Wheels in our community. We hear from so many donors whose lives have been touched one way or another by Meals on Wheels and it's humbling that so many decide to give back to keep this service going. We found this note from a donor named Jane particularly touching:

"I'm going to be 89 years old and so is my husband. I know just how bad it would be if we didn't have family to help us out. I wish I could give more, but I'm glad to share."

Thank you to every one of you who make this service possible, whether through financially supporting Meals on Wheels or volunteering. It takes a whole community of people who appreciate the value of a daily meal delivered by a caring volunteer to make Meals on Wheels available to people in the Twin Cities.

CHRIS, CATHRYN, NICK
& AARON KASIC
